

LAST WEEK IN THE WEST.

NEW YORKS AND BROOKLYNS HAVE A HARD TASK BEFORE THEM.

The Gotham Men Have Made a Fine Show-ing on Their Trip so Far, Winsing Ten of the Thirteen Games Played—Brook-lyns Have Won Six and Lost Seven—The New Yorks Play at Cincinnati To-day and the Brooklyns at Chicago.

The New Yorks' remarkably fine showing in the West is the talk of the town, and their chances for the pennant are being discussed on all sides. That they have spiritual opportunity to distinguish themselves is acknowledged by their admiring followers of the game, who hope they can continue their good work there, until nothing can stop them. During the past week they won six out of seven games, which far exceeded the work of any other Eastern club. They are right on the heels of the Philadelphians, and with any kind of ball playing should pull up among the leaders before returning to this city on Aug. 2.

To date they have played thirteen games on the Western trip, winning ten, which is an enviable record. This week they will wind up the tour with six games, equally divided between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. These will be very hard battles to win, but as the men are in excellent shape, and the pitchers taking them, they should win at least four of the six.

They have figured in the more adventurous games, however, that the New Yorks showed in two games at Cincinnati and two at Pittsburgh, which may turn out to be possible. But anybody who claims three straight at Cincinnati and the same at Pittsburgh is asking entirely too much. With an even break on the week, their record for the tour will be 16 wins and 10 losses, which would be highly satisfactory, considering the many obstacles in the way of Eastern teams.

Next week they will play three games at the three great centers of Washington, and a large number of Gotham cranks intend to visit that city to cheer their men on. The New Yorks are so well along in their tour, so well on their trip, at the New Yorks have played thirteen games, winning six and losing seven, at the same time taking a winning streak of seven games, which the Brooklynys may such poor ball away from home is one of the mysteries of the game. They are accompanied on the tour by a host of Gothamists, and the rinks, and the rimes of discipline are undoubtedly enforced. The Brooklynys have played some grand games, but their share of notoriety, Kennedy, their star pitcher, even not being on the hospital list. They will meet the Chicago team and to-morrow play at St. Louis, and then return to their home on Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday. They may yet better their record before returning East, and if they do, they will have a spark, but will be encouraged to do their best.

The Boston, whose poor work in the West is causing no end of comment, have three games to play at Louisville, and then return to New England. They should win a majority of these games, as both clubs have been a bit easy for the ex-champions. The Boston men are expected to be washed with especial interest, for the Boston must pull Tebeau's meter down in order to help the Eastern clubs in the race. The Boston men are not to be despised, however, as they will tackle the Louisville three times this week before winding up at Cincinnati. The Boston men, to date, the results of the three games will have a most important bearing on the standing of these clubs, and the last two weeks of the tour will be up at Louisville, Cleveland, and Chicago.

The Washingtons play at the West, a few games to be played by the two sections among themselves, and then the Western clubs will come East for what bid fare to be the most interesting part of the tour. The members of the four Western clubs in the first division now, the Clevelands and Pittsburghs are the most to be feared.

The Chicago's pitchers appear to be weakening, and it's thought the Cincinnati will surely go to the wall when they come East. The Pittsburgs, however, are still strong, Hart being the top dog, Hayley being the only twirler who is effective day and day out. Hart is being pounded, and the others are erratic. If Jack strengthens his game, and the team improves, make a great finish, so the experts say. The Clevelands, however, are conceded the best team in the West. With the exception of now for the dash down the homestretch than any other of the Western organizations.

The New Yorks, however, have the strongest set of pitchers in the West, and this vantage should tell in the long run. Although no official announcement has been made, it is thought that the Boston team will cover over, he will again play first base, and Capt. Doyle will go to second base or short stop. If he plays the former position, Stafford will be in the lead, and the Boston team will be led by Murphy, who stays where he is. It is not thought that Pfeffer will wear a New York uniform this year, and Stafford will continue to be a regular member of the team.

SUNDAY ON THE DIAMOND.

Brooklyn Defeats Chicago in an Exciting Twenty-inning Game.

CHICAGO, July 21. The Brooklynys won the game from Anson's Colts to-day after twelve innings. The losing of the game was due to the efforts of Wilmett, Dahlion, and Everett, who made a number of the most glaring and inexcusable errors seen on the Chicago grounds this year. Both umpires were bad enough, but Gardner was even worse than his colleague, excepting in the seventh inning, when runs which Corcoran and Loughran scored, were counted, as Jevne decided the Chicago had a double play, retiring the side. It was this way: After Shoch had been retired on a fly to Lange, Lachance hit a pretty single over second base and then stole second. Tredway sent a liner to Anson, who muffed it. Lachance landed on third. Corcoran hit to Dahlion, who threw to Stewart at second, catching Tredway on a force out. Lachance sprinted for home, and Stewart threw to Donahue to catch him. Base runner and ball reached the plate together. "Sat!" yelled Jevne. Donahue was struck at the position and threw the ball around to the right fielder. Corcoran ran around the diamond and crossed the rubber, all of which should have netted two runs. Then Lachance hit a single, and the two officers were struck by stones, and one lady was knocked down. Friend took her before it could be learned what really had been injured.
